

On the hunt for work of the future

Challenges for the organizing of work and for research

The above is a translation of the title of a book in Swedish

På jakt efter framtidens arbete – utmaningar i arbetets organisering och forskning

Åke Sandberg et al, Tankesmedjan Tiden, Stockholm 2016

The book may be downloaded at two sites

<http://tankesmedjantiden.se/publikationer>

www.akesandberg.se/publications

You may also buy the book in print

Table of Contents

Translated into English, including the affiliation of the authors

Preface

1. The transformation of working life and challenges for research, by Åke Sandberg, MBA, professor emeritus, Department of sociology, Stockholm University
2. Blind spots in understanding society – and how to avoid them, by Sverker Sörlin, professor of environmental history at KTH, the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm
3. Renewing Swedish leadership in worklife and employment research, by Russel D. Lansbury, professor emeritus in work- and organization studies at the School of Business at the University of Sydney
4. Research on working life in Sweden – a historical outline, by Åke Sandberg, professor emeritus at the Department of Sociology at Stockholm University
5. Future prospects for research on the organizing of work, by Åke Sandberg, professor emeritus at the Department of Sociology at Stockholm University
6. Do we already know all about the power over work and organization?, by Fredrik Movitz, researcher at the Department of Sociology at Stockholm University
7. It takes time to catch present times. – Reflections on research about conflicts on workplaces, by Paula Mulinari, PhD in gender studies and lecturer in social work at Malmö University College
8. Efforts at the workplace crucial for those on sick-leave, by Ulf Lundberg, professor emeritus in humanistic-biological psychology, and Gunnar Aronsson, professor in work- and organizational psychology, both at the Department of psychology at Stockholm University

9. What kind of support exists to improve the competence for creating good work organizations? By John Sjöström, PhD and researcher on work environment, and Lisa Schmidt, Bachelor of Arts, social scientist and ergonomist both at IVL the Swedish Environmental Institute
10. Gone with the wind? A researcher's journey, by Wuokko Knocke, associate professor emerita, previously employed at the National Institute for Working Life
11. Action research in working life research – a road ahead? By Tony Huzzard, professor of organization studies at the Institute of Business Administration at Lund University, and Yvonne Johansson, PhD at the School of social work at Lund University
12. The dilemma of action research – some results based on experience, by Lennart Svensson, professor emeritus in sociology at Linköping University
13. Demand Shaping – a model for 'user led' Innovation which can form a Jigsaw Piece for Emancipatory Work Life Research, by Ernst Hollander, University of Gävle
14. When digitizing transforms work and the economy, by Åke Walldius, associate professor at the Royal Institute of Technology and Anette Andersson, PhD in human-computer interaction, working at "Unionen" a trade union, and Carola Löfstrand, specialist in issues of work environment working at the union "Vision"
15. Nordic research on working life seen from a Danish perspective, by Helge Hvid, professor in studies of working life at Roskilde University, and Sidsel Lond Gølsen, lecturer in studies of working life at Roskilde University
16. Trends in critical "Work Life Research": The case of Australia, by Ian Hampson, associate professor of Employment Relations , and David E. Morgan, senior lecturer in Employment Relations, both at the Australian School of Business in Sydney
17. Working life research 2016 – scattered and bound to disciplines, by Lennart Sturesson, PhD in technology and social change, previously employed at the National Institute for Working Life, NIWL
18. The future of working life research in a bibliometric perspective, by Ulf Sandström, presently guest professor of scholarly studies at Örebro and Göteborg University
19. Appeal from researchers: Social sciences are weak at Forte. On the occasion of the election of a new board in Forte. 2nd of December 2015
20. Forte and the evaluation of Swedish research on work organization, by Åke Sandberg, MBA, professor emeritus, Department of sociology, Stockholm University
21. "Swedish research on working life is impoverished", by Ann Bergman, professor in working life science at Karlstad University, published in Dagens Arbete, April 15, 2014
22. "The key for success", by Jan Ch. Karlsson, professor emeritus of sociology at the department of working life science at Karlstad University, Gerd Lindgren, professor of sociology at Karlstad University and Åke Sandberg, professor emeritus at Stockholm University, published in UNT Debatt, January 19, 2016
23. "Misunderstandings of the Forte-report" , by Peter Allebeck, professor in social medicine and secretary-in-chief for Forte, and Ewa Ställdal, General director of Forte, published in UNT Debatt, January 23, 2016
24. "A radically new aim and direction is needed", by Jan Ch. Karlsson, Gerd Lindgren and Åke Sandberg, published in UNT Debatt, January 31 of 2016